

St. Andrew's Becomes a Year-round Church

Beginning in 1987, St. Andrew's began to hold off-season services at the United Congregational Church in the Ladies Parlor. At first, there were fewer than a dozen in attendance at these services.

Under the leadership of the Reverend Hébert Bolles, a retired U. S. Navy chaplain, the congregation soon outgrew the Ladies Parlor and moved to a larger space within the United Congregational Church, the Undercroft. Summer services continued at the chapel.
